Severe weather warnings for Pine County flashed across the TV screens all evening June 14. Desperate for much needed rain, viewers kept on watching their favorite programs and hoped for a nice, steady down pour. At approximately 9:55 p.m. the rain came driven by winds strong enough to uproot a tree at Nelsonville resident Dennis Erickson's home. It took the swingset and slide from the Dennis Howard yard with it. Power was totally out in some homes in the neighborhood and lights only flickered momentarily in others. A tree at the Charles Lamke home snapped off like a match-stick and barely missed the house as it crashed to the ground. Although the area on the northeast side of Pokegama Lake suffered substantial wind damage, other spots surrounding Pine City only received a few sprinkles of rain as the storm pass through.

Minnesota will be represented at the FITA World Field Archery Championships for the first time. Cathy Korby, Willow River, has earned the women's bare-bow position for this biannual event in August at Epernay, France. The team was chosen from the winners of the National Archery Association's Field Archery Championships which were held in May in Mesa, Arizona. FITA field archery combines the challenges of known and unknown distances in rounds of 24 targets. The tournament begins with qualifying rounds, followed by the elimination rounds. According to Korby, "Shooting is the easy part. I've been told the Europeans like very rugged terrain compared to popular field archery in the United States." Korby has won numerous titles in the compound style of barebow. This is the most prestigious event for recurve bow archers. Michael Dufresne, Jared Hawkinson and Zac O'Donnell, all of Pine City, attended a tennis camp at the College of St. Benedict June 19-23. The co-ed camp was directed by Jerry Sales, who has more than 30 years of tennis experience as both a player and coach. Dufresne is the son of Warren and Mary Dufresne, Hawkinson the son of Gary and Janet Hawkinson and O'Donnell the son of Mike and Linda O'Donnell.

The homecoming celebration in honor of Pine County's returned soldiers, sailors and marines, at Pine City was the biggest, most successful and best arranged and carried out celebration of any kind ever held in this part of the state. It is safe to say that, in mid-afternoon, there were upward of 9,000 people present. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon, a partial count and estimate placed the number of automobiles in town at about 1,500, which might be estimated to have brought in an average of four to the car, to say nothing of the many hundreds who came by train.

The little daughter of Eric Colin of Sandstone, about five years of age, was run into by an auto and knocked down but not seriously injured.

Minnesota will be represented at the FITA World Field Archery Championships for the first time. Cathy Korby, Willow River, has earned the women's bare-bow position for this biannual event in August in Epernay, France. The team was chosen from the winners of the National Archery Association's Field Archery Championships which were held in May in Mesa, Arizona. FITA field archery combines the challenges of known and unknown distances in rounds of 24 targets. The tournament begins with qualifying rounds, followed by the elimination rounds. According to Korby, "Shooting is the easy part. I've been told the Europeans like very rugged terrain compared to popular field archery in the United States." Korby has won numerous titles in the compounds style of bare-bow. This is the most prestigious event for recurved bow archers.

Members of the Thunderin' Toms, a local chapter of the National Wild Turkey Federation (NWTF) and the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources are working together to improve habitat in Pine County. On a clear Saturday morning, June 13, volunteers from all over Pine County gathered together for donuts and instructions on how to cage in about 5,000 bur and red oak trees that were planted in 2004 and had seen several years of deer wear and tear. "Oak trees are so important to wildlife in this area. If these trees can get a chance to grow before the deer and other wildlife eat the tops off them, they will provide food and shelter for many species, including turkeys," said Dave Johnson, a wildlife conservation officer with the DNR. "It's fun to get out here and see different country and meet people who love the outdoors and wildlife," said Tom Kloeckl, a Pine City resident. "And the donuts weren't bad either."

Rita Bible and Dave Griffith don't know each other, but these two Pine City residents share the qualities which caused them to be named 2009 Outstanding Senior Volunteers for Pine County. Regarding the long hours she spends volunteering, Rita said, "When you volunteer, you get self-satisfaction. Volunteers get more out of it than the people they help. It's the satisfaction that you are giving." Griffith said he was "surprised and humbled" by his award. But the variety and number of hours he has volunteered in his 85 years have more than earned him this recognition. "I consider it a privilege to have had all the years that I've done this. I mean that. It's been more benefit to me than the people I was serving. I serve warm meals and walk out with a warm heart," said Griffith.

It was just a little path through the woods, but this summer it connected several young lives with their school and their community. Ten Pine City teenagers created what they call the Environmental Fitness Trail. It begins in the woods, east of the city's new softball fields and north of the high school. Working 12 hours, three days a week for six weeks, they ended up with a trail 10 to 12 feet wide and about one mile long. They also put in four Gamefield exercise pods, donated to the school district by the National Fitness Campaign, giving users the space and equipment to do warm up exercises, strengthening exercises and a cool down routine. The trail project was a cooperative effort of the Private Industry Council 5, which provided a grant to pay the workers $4.25 per hour, the City of

A way of life comes to an end on Friday. The Pine City Mill, the last grain mill in Pine City, will shut down operations on Aug. 21 after running for longer than 85-year-old owner Ernie Broz can remember. He and his father Henry bought the mill together in 1948, but it had been around “way, way before that,” Broz said. The Pine City Mill has been losing money for several years, and Ernie and Randy made the decision to shut it down. “I’m going to miss coming here. I love to talk to the people,” Broz said. “You meet a lot of different kinds of people,” his son agreed. “Things could change,” he said. “If someone wants to take it over, I’ll let them have it for nothing, just to keep her going. I don’t need more money.”

A rural Grasston man may be the next state record holder for bow-killed black bear. Larry Latourelle, 32, was bow hunting near Sandstone on the evening of Sept. 5 when he killed what may be the largest black bear ever taken in the state by a modern-day archer. “It’s pretty safe to say that it’s going to be in the top three,” said Latourelle. The remarkable male bruin he shot while it was standing a scant 12 yards away tipped the scales at 352 pounds. But weight’s not what counts in the record books; skull measurement is. “It’s green-scored was 21-04/16 inches (unofficial measurement taken before mandatory drying time has elapsed). That’s the same as the current number-one bear.” said Brad Bakken, owner of Bakken’s Bait in Stanchfield. “It’s pretty exciting,” said Latourelle, whose previous largest bear weighed 231 pounds. “And yet it’s kind of different because I’ve never considered myself a trophy hunter. Actually, any deer or bear is a trophy.”

A volunteer organization that has been a fixture in Pine City for the past 56 years is shutting down, and its members couldn't be happier about it. The Pine City Development Corporation handed a $220,000 check over to the Pine City Economic Development Authority for use in its revolving loan fund on Sept. 29; and with that, the PCDC – which had existed since 1953 in Pine City – was no longer in existence. Howard Ledin, former Pine County Attorney and longtime member of the PCDC, explained that the members of the group felt the organization had run its course. “It seemed to us it was more sensible to dissolve and give that money to the EDA, which is much more capable of proceeding with loans. We would be woefully ill-prepared to service loans,” Ledin said. The $220,000 has come primarily from the sale of land on the northwest corner of Highway 61 and County Road 11 that the PCDC had sold to Kanabec County to build a health care facility at that location.

The cross-country coaches are proud to honor the following students as Athletes of the Week: returning letter winners Cody Hanson (11), Megan Miesner (10) and Sherry Rike (9), and newcomers Abby Cummins (9), Mike Chouanard (12) and John Dedic (11). Cody and Sherry have consistently finished as number one runners for our team this fall. They have both set high goals for themselves and work very hard to achieve them. Megan, Abby, Mike and John have made solid contributions to this year’s squad. They have great attitudes and good worth ethics.

Jamie Fedder, daughter of Ed and Margo Fedder of Pine City, is the highest ranked girl tennis player John Eberhart has ever coached for the Dragons. According to the latest statistics, she is No. 7 in singles in Class A tennis. This has been good enough to draw the attention of college coaches. Fedder expects to go to the University of Minnesota-Duluth on a tennis scholarship in 1995. She credits her parents in helping her get this far. “They have always supported my interests in tennis. I started in fifth grade playing with my cousin, and in seventh grade I joined organized tennis with the junior high. I’ve been playing varsity since eighth grade.” Fedder not only plays tennis but teaches too. She works with the summer recreation program in Pine City, helping younger kids learn about this game.

On Wednesday, Oct. 5, the selection committee for the proposed prison met to hear presentations of communities interested in having the proposed 800-bed close custody correctional facility. Groups representing Isanti County, St. Cloud, Braham and Pine City Rush City-Harris were each allowed one and one-half hours to present their information. Clark Joslin, member of the Isanti County Area Correctional Facility Task Force, said Monday, Oct. 10, the field has been further narrowed to Pine City-Rush City-Harris, Isanti County and Braham. Final recommendation is expected Monday, Oct. 31. Although any community within the state was originally allowed to submit a proposal, Joslin said preference was given to any sites within a 35-mile radius of the Cambridge Regional Treatment Center, which is downsizing.

Hunters in the Pine City area can work to improve wildlife habitat by donating their deer hides to the Hides for Habitat program. The program is sponsored by the Minnesota Deer Hunters Association, which works closely with the Department of Natural Resources on habitat projects. The MDHA has collected 142,094 hides since 1985. Hide sales have generated $842,562 to help fund projects that benefit deer, small game and non-game species. Most of the money is matched by the state's Reinvest in Minnesota program, thereby creating a million-dollar-plus wildlife effort. "Hides for Habitat is actually a recycling program," said John Kvasnicka, executive director of the MDHA. "These hides are recycled into apparel, and the dollars generated by the sale of hides are recycled into the land." Habitat funds are typically used to acquire land, establish winter food plots, build access trails, plant cover and create openings.

The deer hunting story Adam Davis tells his classmates contains enough heart-stopping excitement to captivate the most experienced hunter. Yet, the tale has nothing to do with a deer. Twelve-year-old Adam, son of John and Linda Davis, Pine City, was attacked by a coyote on Sunday, Nov. 6 while hunting on his uncle's property between Beroun and Brook Park. According to Adam, he was sitting in a field, waiting for his dad to flush out a deer, when the animal came out of nowhere and latched onto his boot. "I thought it was like a wolf or something," he said. "I heard it coming through the grass, but I didn't see it until it grabbed my boot." When he couldn't shake the coyote off, Adam aimed his 303 British rifle and "shot it in the gut." Adam thinks the coyote was attracted to his boot because there was blood on it from a deer he had watched his dad gut shortly before the attack. He escaped the incident without so much as a scratch.

Grant Norlander, the keeper of the hotel at Henriette, was arrested on a warrant sworn out by the state hotel inspector charging noncompliance with the law and that he had failed to comply with orders from the department to remedy matters.

A bull moose paid Pine County a visit, last Thursday. He chased through Hank Hooker's backyard at Brook Park, early in the morning and trotted down to Mel Trotter's and Mr. Kargas' east of town, in which region he just naturally disappeared. Several people saw the animal in that region. Marion Lones returned today from the woods about 47 miles north of Cloquet, bringing back a fine buck. He reports a Chicago man stepped off the train there in his presence, stood on the track in front of the engine for a few minutes and shot a bull moose that came up to greet him. Marion also says the train he came in on picked up 74 deer within a 36 mile stretch above Cloquet.

Hunters are coming in daily with loads of deer, they being quite plentiful in this part of the county.

J.E. Netser, our Village Marshall, received a telegram on Monday from the Deputy Sheriff of Ramsey County telling him to arrest a man on the Limited for embezzlement. When the train arrived, he stepped on and took his man.

A visit to our magnificent new school house reveals a peculiar state of affairs as regards the "modern improved heating system" in vogue in that piece of architectural grandeur. One would think himself in a boiler testing establishment from the noise made by escaping steam. This defect should be remedied at once as it not only is a hindrance to the progress of the work but is also not what the contract called for.

Local residents flocked to the Pine City Elementary Auditorium this weekend, where the high school's fall musical, "Little Shop of Horrors," did frighteningly well drawing record crowds. Both Friday and Saturday evenings performances were near sellouts and attendance soared at Sunday's matinee, which featured a special backstage tour for families. According to director Bradley Mariska, over 1,100 tickets were sold to the weekend's performances. "How exciting for the students to be able to perform in front of packed houses," said Mariska. "And what a great community that comes out to support these talented students."

A new series of license plates designed by Pine City native Amie Dahl, a Technical Sergeant in United States Air Force National Air Guard, was recently unveiled at the State Capitol. The plates commemorate "Gold Star" families who have lost a family member serving on active military duty. At the unveiling ceremony, which was attended by Governor Pawlenty, First Lady Mary Pawlenty and Major General Larry Shellito, Amie was presented with an engraved award and roses. Amie is a 1998 graduate of Pine City High School. Her parents, Jon and Carole Dahl of Pine City, said they were proud of their daughter. "We are humbled by Amie's dedication and accomplishments," said Carole Dahl. "She proudly serves her country and has done two tours in Iraq herself."

Twelve year-old-Peter "Two Bucks" Gustafson, a seventh grader at Pine City High School, shot two bucks on opening day of the Minnesota deer season. Hunting east of Hinckley, on his grandfather Virgil Gustafson's land, Peter was the only hunter in his party of nine to take a deer on opening weekend. He shot the first one from the stand his dad was using when he shot his first deer 27 years ago. Peter's parents, Keith and Mary Gustafson, own and operate the Dairy Queen in Pine City.

"All of the characters are based on fact or a cumulation of factual people," said Karlajean Becvar about Hinckley-Finlayson High School's upcoming play, "Christmas '94." Becvar teaches seventh and ninth grade English, acting, speech and creative writing at the Hinckley-Finlayson High School. She lives in Pine City with her husband, Jay, and three collie dogs. "I spent most of the summer writing this [play]," said Becvar, after a year of research. "I'd be up at three in the morning just plugging away at my computer … One section of the play has been rewritten 25 times … My kids

(students) have really helped with the editing process...I think it's a wonderful learning experience for them." "Christmas '94" is about the first Christmas in Hinckley after the Great Hinckley Fire of 1894. Becvar's primary source of information was the book "From the Ashes," written by Grace Swenson.

The Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) staff, with help from the Minnesota Conservation Corps, harvested a 44-foot balsam fir from the Nemadji State Forest in northeastern Pine County on Nov. 20 that will grace the Governor's official residence in St. Paul for the holiday season. The hunt for the Christmas tree begins in early fall when DNR foresters scout for potential candidates in Minnesota's network of 58 state forests. "Finding a perfect specimen growing in the wild is not an easy task," according to Tim Brault, a DNR forestry technician. Once felled, the tree is loaded on a trailer, bound in rope and tarp-covered for its journey to St. Paul. When the holiday season ends, the tree is removed, chipped and recycled.

Cambridge's Jason Yates was defensive player of the year and Ed Melcher, of Braham, coach of the year.

Deer and bear hunters in east central Minnesota had less success than last year, yet hunting was still quite good. Though numbers are incomplete at this time, it appears the firearms deer harvest is down 10 to 20 percent in the Hinckley, St. Cloud, Little Falls, Brainerd, Cambridge and Aitkin areas. The bear harvest is down about 37 percent from last year. "Though hunters took fewer deer and bear, the harvests are still high when measured against the yardstick of history," said Henry Wulf, DNR regional wildlife supervisor. "This region's bear harvest is the fourth largest on record and the deer harvest is also the fourth largest." Wulf said this year's lower harvest is a reflection of abundant acorn and berry crops, which provided bear with ample natural food. "Bear were less inclined to visit bait stations because they had food all around them," said Wulf.

The county commissioners, at their meeting Monday, sold all of the poor farm that lies about two miles east of Hinckley, for $55 an acre. The 120 acres sold contain the large house and barn and much cleared land and considerable land unfit for anything but pasture. While the house on the farm would be large and commodious for a farmhouse, there were no facilities for housing the men and women separately and the men were housed in a little shack that has been condemned for years by the state board of health. The poor farm has been a white elephant in the hand of the county ever since it was bought through the efforts of the old ring that formerly controlled the county and that still retains too much power. Because of complaints from St. Paul, the board ordered the removal of the snow from half the Federal Road and then the discharge of all the maintainers.

The county school boards' association held its annual meeting in the new theatre at Hinckley, last Friday afternoon, giving folks opportunity to arrive on the noon trains and leave before supper in all directions. State Rural School Inspector Swain was present and gave a dandy address. "A $90 teacher is too expensive a piece of furniture to have her spending her time cleaning the schoolhouse. Contract that job to somebody else and tell the teacher that you expect her time and thought and efforts to be centered on the teaching work in the school. Keep the outhouse door closed so as to keep the snow and rain out, using a spring or a pulley rope and piece of iron. The best kind of teacher is the cheapest kind. When you get a good one, hang onto her, make her feel at home and keep her in the community over Saturday and Sunday. Give your teacher a bonus if her wages are too low. Don't fall back too hard on your contract, pay her what is right and fair. The board has the legal right to do this, and if there is any question you can fire her and hire her over at a satisfactory price."

Pine County Deputies Scott Grice and Tom Meier were each recognized on Jan. 5 for saving a life in the past year. In two separate incidents, the two deputies made decisions that resulted in someone still being alive today. Pine County Sheriff Mark Mansavage reported that Grice saved the life of a man whose heart had stopped at Jan and Gary's Restaurant in Sandstone in July. Using one of the defibrillators recently placed in Sheriff's Department vehicles, Grice was able to revive the man. Meier received his award for preventing a suicide at the Highway 35 intersection with Highway 70, where a woman was declaring her intention to jump into traffic. Mansavage said that Meier was able to talk the woman into not jumping, thus saving her life. Mansavage congratulated the two men.

Curling and dogsleds were some of the highlights of the North West Company Fur Post Winter Frolic on Saturday, Jan. 16. Participants enjoyed the sunshine as they got a taste of truly old-fashioned winter fun. Children made friends with the New Moonshine Huskies of Pine City, who provided rides around camp. Others played snow snake, or snowshoed along the nature trails as they learned about winter travel during the fur trade.

Beargrease triumph Local musher J.R. Anderson tackled the grueling challenge of the John Beargrease race and claimed fourth place. Anderson entered the 105-mile, six dog division of the Beargrease, not the notorious 500 mile marathon. This was his second year to competition, and he completed the course in 19 hours, 12 of those running hours, the rest required layover time. The clock placed him one hour and 15 minutes behind the first and second place mushers and only 15 minutes out of third place. The Anderson family has been active in sled dog racing for about five years.

Four young people from the Pine City Area Learning Center visited Washington, D.C., Nov. 13-20. Marti Hoiland, Mathea Bell Bruley, Kelly Reynolds and Larry Hayes participated in the Close Up Washington program. Through question and answer discussions, small seminars and workshops, students had an opportunity to experience, close up, how the government works. As a result, participants became not only more knowledgeable about the government but also more comfortable talking about current issues. Bonnie Sparling, the teacher accompanying the group, said the experience will have lasting and far-reaching effects on the people involved.

On Jan. 17, more than 250 former colleagues, family members and friends gathered to help former Pine City School Superintendent Clarence Espeseth celebrate his 90th birthday at the Pizza Pub in Pine City. Those who know Espeseth agree that he is a remarkable man. In 1965 the Pine City school board recruited him for the position of Superintendent of Independent School Districts 578 and 579. He almost declined. According to his own words, "Everything was in such bad shape here!" However, Espeseth means "Aspen on the hill" in Norwegian. The aspen tree has a unique characteristic to bend in high winds instead of break. Espeseth took the job. Throughout the next 17 years, Espeseth – along with many dedicated colleagues – transformed every aspect of the local educational system. At his 90th birthday party, many commented on how he treats everyone with respect no matter who they are. Former Guidance Counselor Howard Olson said, "He is a friend's friend and an educator's educator."

One of the saddest accidents reported for some time, was the death of the twoand-a half-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rozum, living east of town, last Friday morning. The little fellow had been left in a chair while his parents had gone to the stable to do the morning milking. During their absence he got a stick of wood and opening the stove he set fire to the wood and evidently set his clothes on fire at the same time. He was overcome by smoke, as his little spirit had departed from its earthly home when he was found by his bereaved mother only a few minutes later. The heartbroken parents have the sympathy of the whole community in the loss of their beloved child.

The taxes in this village are about double what they were the previous years, owing to the new and the special village tax. It is hard, but will have to be endured for a while at least until we can get our new school building paid for. It is the first time in a number of years that this district has been in debt and it will come hard at first but it will be only a few years until the district will be out of debt and the taxes again reduced.

If there have been any births within the village of Pine City during the year 1894 that have not been reported to the health officer it should be reported at once to E.E. Barnum so that the register of births and deaths will be complete and accurate. Number of births and deaths reported in 1894 is 23, while in 1893 there were 30. The number of deaths in 1894 was 12, and in 1893 it was 11. Of the 12 reported only four died of disease contracted in Pine City. Six died as a result of accidents by water, FIre, etc. What village of 1,000 people can show a better death record. From Jan. 1 to May 1 there was not a death recorded.

Some folks pretend to doubt Pine City's chance to grow very much "because we haven't any institution that gives employment to a large number of men." They don't stop to realize that those great institutions all grow from small beginnings. It is the man who starts under difficulties and in a small way, learning to succeed against obstacles, who demonstrates his ability and is able to get financial assistance when he needs it in branching out. Pine City has one institution, the Power Co., which employs quite a number of men, the outgrowth of a little beginning in the flour mill engine room, some 22 years ago.

The ice cutting was at a standstill for a couple of days this week on account of the cold weather. Sheriff McLaughlin was called to Sandstone to arrest five men who had refused to assist the village marshall in making an arrest. The men were brought to this village and arraigned before Judge Veenhoven for trial. L.H. McKusick appeared for the state while the prisoners looked after their own interests. The prisoners tried to prove that the marshall was drunk but it was proven that he was perfectly sober at the time of the trouble. The prisoners were each fined $10.00 and costs, with the exception of one, who had a sore foot and was unable to assist the officer. This shows that there is a crowd of people who are trying to run the town but they will find out that they cannot do as they please with an officer of the law.

Some of our local baseball enthusiasts have been busy the past week making plans for a first class team for our town this summer. Band leader Bastien informs us that he has a big surprise in store for Pine City folks this summer, when the boys’ band will make their first appearance. He states the boys are very enthusiastic over their work and will give us a band to be proud of.

A man who owns some renting property in town was here a week ago and became so enthused by what he was told by some Pine City folks that he placed increased values on his holding, amounting to 40% in one case. Of course, this means that he will want more rent. Pine City is growing and property values are increasing, but not as rapidly as some folks seem to think.

Invention gets warm response. A young inventor from Pine City Elementary will get to show off her ingenuity at the Minnesota Student Inventors Congress in Redwood Falls June 9-11. Erica Kiminski, daughter of Michael and Gretchen Kiminski, took her Winter Wear Warmer to regional competition in St. Cloud Feb. 28 and earned the right to show it at the state congress. Erica's invention saves energy by using home heating vents to dry hats, boots and mittens. The clothing items are placed over the black plastic pipes and the whole unit is set on top of a heat vent. Erica came up with the idea, and her dad helped her produce the unit. Other Pine City students whose inventions won their classroom competitions and went on to St. Cloud were Lezlie Ballis, Curtis Kubesh, Nicole Carlson, Danielle Gohman, Joe Kruse, Charlie Zak, Sara Mizer, Melisa Dehkes and Dan Teich.

Here is the latest farmer's lament: It's scarcely any wonder that lines are on my brow; it's hard to make a living, as things are going now. I plant nice potatoes and sit down to watch them grow; then comes a frost a whooping and lays the blamed thinks low. I plant some little seedlets to raise some succotash; my neighbors' hens come and knock them all to smash. I had an arbor in which to snooze and rest; a cow came in and climbed it and set it gaily west, I bought a dozen egglets, (they cost so much, I cried); they hatched a lonely chicken and it went off to die. The insects ate the cabbage, the worms have nailed the corn; my sheep are wild and wooly; my cow has lost a horn; my pig has got the measles and squeals unseeming tunes; my geese are hunting water; and I am full of prunes.

At about nine o'clock on Thursday evening as Mrs. Amos Gamble and her mother Mrs. Murphy were sitting in their house, two masked men rapped at the door. Mrs. Gamble thinking it was one of the neighbors, hastened to unfasten the bolt holding the door. As soon as the door was opened a sack was thrown over her head, but she managed to get it off and fought for her life. The men commenced rubbing her eyes and when they found that would do no good they choked her until she blacked out. They dragged her out of the door on her face and went straight for her money which she had concealed in a pocket in her chemise, and was one hundred and sixty dollars all the money she had in the world. They then fired a shot from a revolver as a signal to their two accomplices who stood about five rods from the house, then all skipped for the woods. Mrs. Gamble has her suspicions as to who the parties are and came to town to swear out a warrant for their arrest.

"Spider" Yost expects to leave Pine City in the next couple of weeks. He has received a number of offers from various ball clubs to play baseball this summer and expects to sign a contract with one of these. Spider has been a resident of this village for the past nine years, with the exception of his service during the war, and a few summers when he has played ball with other clubs, most of that time he has been employed at the Pine Poker office. It was hoped by the local ball fans and players that he would play with the local team this year, and he will be missed when the season opens. He has been the backbone of the team the past few years and has given many of our boys their first lesson in baseball.

After a number of the local men doing team work, were heard, it was decided to pay eighty cents per hour for a man and team and forty cents per hour for man alone on the street work this summer.

In one of the windows on Fifth Avenue during the past gala week, there were exhibited two gowns presumably for the street, but they were abbreviated and diaphanous in the extreme, so much so that one uninitiated in the change could not have been expected to recognize them as street garments. There is no denying the fact that the short skirts are pretty and in most cases, becoming. They are so short that they are nearer the knees than the ankles. The short skirt, without doubt bids fair to become the most distinguishing feature of feminine apparel for 1920.

We happened to mention the other day that Frank Stuck had driven up from St. Paul in two hours and five minutes. We thought that was good time. But Fred Jordan comes forth and says that he and George Haynes went from Pine City to Willow River in fifty-eight minutes. Just as we were recovering from this Bill Schumacher tells that he went from Port Arthur to the boundary, fifty-five miles in one hour and a half. This sounded good until Sam Miller said that he and Jim Mach went to St. Paul last Saturday evening in one hour and forty-eight minutes. We were just coming up for air when Rudolph Bazil told us that the fastest town he had been in was Spooner, WI, where they arrest you for obstructing traffic if you travel slow. He was over there last week and says they have signs at both sides of town reading thus “Speed Limit 45 Miles Per Hour.” The Poker force hopped into our little jitneys and bowled along Rock Creek and other places pretty lively, sometimes brushing a rig or two out of the way, but the above mentioned boys have watches whose hands travel faster than ours.

That some day, not far distant, the common housefly and the mosquito will be as extinct as the dinosaur and so will the diseases these insects now carry, is the bright expectations of Dr. Paul Muller and Dr. Paul Lauger. They have reason for their expectations for they are the men who gave DDT, the miracle insectacide, the U.S. Army and worldwide public health. The scientists asserted that with proper control, flies and mosquitos and other harmful insects can be eliminated entirely from the United States. They warned, however, that it is a job for entomologists.

On Tuesday morning, Ed Jesmer, our local horse trainer, came in from his farm three miles west on the Brunswick road with a nice-appearing irongrey mare hitched to his milk wagon, that he had taken to break of balking. She came into town alright but when he tried to drive her back home she refused to move out of her tracks. Ed put on the breaking rig used by Prof. Boucher for throwing horses, and after throwing the mare about 20 times succeeded in getting her home. One Wednesday he again brought the milk to the morning train with the mare. He got along alright until he started for home; after turning the corner at the post office the mare came to the conclusion that she had gone far enough, and as the sequel proved she had, for after unhitching her from the wagon and putting the breaking rig on she threw herself over backward and killed herself.

It wasn't a Missouri editor but a Missouri printer's devil who was going through the first experience of "making up forms." The paper was late and boy got his galleys mixed. The first part of the obituary of an impecunious citizen had been dumped in the form and the next handful of type came off a galley describing a recent fire. It read like this: "The pallbearers lowered the body into the grave, and as it was consigned to the flames there were few if nay regrets, for the old wreck had been an eyesore to the town for many years. Of course there was individual loss, but that was fully covered by insurance." The widow thinks the editor wrote the obituary that way because the lamented partner of her joys and sorrows owed him five years subscriptions.

Passers-by came to the rescue of two teenage girls who drove off the Tigua Road bridge on March 11, saving the life of one of the girls who was trapped underwater. The other girl was also able to escape. The vehicle was upside down in the icy water with the girls inside."I'll never forget the look on that little girl's face when she saw me – and I'll never forget when I saw her," Linda Landin said. "She started frantically yelling, 'Help me! Help me! She's drowning!' Then I saw the blonde hair down in the water." It was the trapped girl's hair, floating above her as she remained trapped about eight inches below the surface. Landin didn't spend any time making a decision. "I thought OK, I guess I'm going to help." She made her way down the snowy hill to the water, kicking her shoes off on the way, and jumped in. "I'm 62," she said. "I thought I was 18." With the help of another rescuer, Ken Stroeing, they were able to free the trapped girl and help restore her breathing.

The tender of the dam (Chengwatana) was very much alarmed Tuesday, on account of the water rising so fast. The dam is an old affair, and it is feared it will go out at any time. The water is rising on an average of six inches every 24 hours. The ice has about all gone out of the river and the water is rising although the gates are all open. A boom has been stretched across the river above the railroad bridge to prevent the bridge and dam from going out with the jam of logs that is expected here within the next few days.

Linda Landin and Ken Stroeing will tell you the same thing: they weren't trying to be heroes. They say anyone would have done what they did. But after they jumped into the freezing waters of the Snake River to save the life of a girl trapped underwater, after they fought to get her free and pulled her to shore, giving her CPR and saving her life, people keep calling them heroes. There's a a good reason for that. It's the only word that fits. And on April 18, Landin and Stroeing were presented with the Pine County Sheriff's Office Lifesaving Award.

One of the oldest business firms in Pine City changed hands this week, when Dr. E. G. Booth of St. Paul purchased the Pine City Mill from R. P. Allen. The Pine City Flour Mill was established and the plant built in 1897 by R. P. Allen and James Dewar under the firm name of Allen & Dewar. Mr. Dewar sold his interests in the fall of that year J. M. Allen and the plant operated as Pine City Milling Co. since that time. This plant furnished the first cash market for grain in Pine City and the operation of the Mill and establishment of this market for farm products greatly contributed toward the development of this section which was then emerging from lumbering to agricultural activities. The steam power plant of the Mill was the birthplace of the Pine City Electric Power company which supplied electric service to Pine City, later the Eastern Minnesota Power company which extended its service to many villages in this section. The flour mill was destroyed by fire in 1920 and the plant rebuilt as a modern feed mill and blending plant and has been operating continuously since that time.

The Pine County Parade had been underway for about 15 minutes Saturday night when spectators saw a huge black cloud of smoke erupt on the fairgrounds. Fire sirens wailed, and horror replaced smiles on the faces of paradegoers as word filtered through the crowd that the fair grandstand was on fire. None of the 300 people in the grandstand at the time wer hurt, though three Pine City firefighters received minor injuries. The investigation is focused on juvenile suspects who were spotted lighting paper on fire and dropping it beneath the grandstand. Sheriff Steve Haavisto said it was lucky the fire burned before the grandstand was full of demo derby fans. “If it had happened half an hour later, we would have had casualties,” Haavisto said.

With her son Shane Bauer finally back in the United States after two years of incarceration in Iran, Pine City’s Cindy Hickey is experiencing something she hasn’t felt since first hearing he had been taken prisoner. "'Freedom' is my new word," Cindy said. "Shane, Sarah [Shourd] and Josh [Fattal] are free, but we're also free. Everything I've done since we arrived back on U.S. soil has had a different feel to it. My first cup of coffee tasted different, my first shower felt different, my first walk. Now I'm marking everything by Shane's freedom versus his detainment. It's overwhelming ... it's definitely a new path in life, and I'm looking forward to a positive direction." It had been two years of waiting, hoping for a phone call or a scrap of news, of writing letters, talking to government officials and organizing support for the three hikers. There were moments of hope which proved empty. Even on Sept. 21, waiting in Oman for news that her son had been released from prison, Cindy wasn't sure if this was truly it. "I really didn't believe that Shane was going to be home until the wheels were off the ground in Tehran," she said. "I didn't really process it until I saw Shane and Josh running down the steps and my biggest feeling when I saw that ... was gratitude. Not just gratitude for his freedom, but for everyone that helped us. It's just overwhelming, the support we've gotten."

Visitors to the Pine Government Center can now take a journey into Pine City’s yesteryears, thanks to the efforts of a small group of volunteers with a passion for the past. The nine members of the Pine City Area Heritage Committee have set up two cases of documents and artifacts from Pine City’s history, and put them on display for everyone to enjoy. Each shelf has its own theme, and Committee Member Richard Lindig has a story for every item inside. There are medals and other war relics here. One case contains the dog tags that Pine City’s Clair Shuey wore in the Medic Corps in World War I. There are also areas dedicated to former sheriffs Rypkema and Kozisek, heroes in WWI and WWII respectively.
A Christmas tree farm located west of Pine City and north of Lake Pokegama is the Snake River Tree Farm owned by John Eberhart, James Sloan and John Oare. It’s a historic moment, and the Pine City National Guard unit is playing a historic role. The unit, currently serving at Camp Buehring in northern Kuwait, is preparing to head back into Iraq to escort a convoy south to Kuwait. It’s a mission they’ve performed many times, but always as a small part of a larger fighting force. Now, they are that fighting force. “Basically, intelligence told us that we were the last firepower in Iraq,” said National Guard Lieutenant Colonel Eddie Frizell. “That gave me a little shiver.” It will also be the last convoy into Iraq for the unit, as the United States completes its withdrawal from that country before Dec. 31 of this year.

One hour on the road with the Pine City National Guard unit in Iraq: About 300 miles north of the Kuwait/ Iraq border, our armored vehicle is slowing down. The rear vehicle in our convoy has spotted a car driving erratically as it approaches. The car passes without incident, and we pick up speed. We are in one of 11 vehicles providing security to 40 civilian transport trucks rolling northward towards Baghdad on our way to Camp Taji, about 20 miles north of the city. There is heavy armor on the sides and bottom to protect from roadside bombs, and a gunner with a .50 caliber machine gun in a turret on the roof. This highway is called Main Supply Road Tampa. It is the major north-south route through Iraq, and has a steady stream of vehicles passing by. Each one could be a threat. There are also buildings along the road that could house snipers, piles of trash that could hide bombs, bridges overhead, broken-down vehicles, pedestrians, motorcyclists, bikers. In a conflict like this, even in its last days, an attack could come from any of these. But the crew has learned what seems normal and what seems out of place. It's those out-of-place things they call out on the radio, and it's rare that a few minutes go by without something that triggers an alert.

Pine City Schools' fourth and seventh graders share favorite Christmas traditions: • We have Christmas Eve at my little redbricked house. We have to get the ornaments down, especially the little green warty pickle. We make cranberries, potatoes and lefsa. My mom, sister, grandma, aunts, and I have an ornament exchange. -Isabelle Helseth • We cook a big dinner with ham, mashed potatoes, gravy and my dad's world famous pumpkin pie. Last year we left the pie on the counter and my cat Shelby licked the top layer off the pie and my dad said my sister had to eat that piece! (Thankfully he just threw it away.) After dinner we go to church for the Christmas Eve service. When we get home we put the reindeer antlers on our dogs, Tatum and Penny, put Christmas music on the stereo and open presents. -Phoebe Harmon • One of my family traditions is the day after Thanksgiving. We get our tree and decorate it, and our house. My favorite ornament is a homemade wood Fran Tarkenton, the old quarterback for the Vikings. On Christmas morning we go to my grandma and grandpa's church and watch the Christmas play. When it's time to go I'm super sad, but I know there will be plenty more fun Christmases to come. -Tanner Wicktor

The wind whips around the VFW post in the early Minnesota winter. A platoon of gray haired men gathers for the monthly meeting of the Novak Milliren post 4258. They are not the young men they were when they served. They gather in a square to conduct their business. They still remember how to stand at attention and salute the flag they protected. Much like their active-duty comrades, there is order, formality to the meeting as they honor the flag and pray for the Fallen.

Last fish crib drops into Pokegama Lake. After 20 years and as many fish cribs a local conservation group may have placed the last of its log and brush fish habitats in local lakes. The Snake River Valley Conservation Club dropped its last fish crib into Pokegama Lake on the morning of January 21st. It's built out of logs and rocks and we put brush in there and sink it in about 16 feet of water explain Steve Saumer, who has been for every drop.

Deep snow poses danger. East Central Electric warns residents, snowmobilers and farmers about the dangers associated with this year's heavy snows. Large drift and snow piles are allowing people together closer to power lines. These lines are energized to 7,200 volts and can be deadly when not handled with proper equipment. Stay at least 10 feet away from any power line. Do not pile snow under power lines or it may provide a way for a person to contact the line. Warn children about playing on snow piles near power lines. Snowmobilers should be aware of their surroundings and stay away from lines.

A couple of memory lane readers remembered visits to Doctor Nethercott: Leonard Pavek recalled seeing the doctor for stitches. Leonard was about 9 years old at the time and cut his right hand when he fell near an ash pile while playing "anti-over" the school woodshed. The second time I had the privilege of having this doctor's acquaintance again was when I was about 11 years old. For some particular reason I was prone to have sore throats a lot. My parents decided maybe it was being caused by having bad tonsils so to the doctor we went to check them out. When our turn came to go in, my parents talked to the doctor who was seated in a swivel chair at his desk. I noticed that hanging over his desk on the wall was a wooden airplane propeller. As the doctor stood up, he looks like a big fellow to me with a partly bald head. He told me to sit in a white steel high-backed chair, which had a moveable light above it. He inspected my throat and said, yes sir, they need to be taken out. I remember him putting some Novocaine in my throat or wherever he put it as it hurt pretty good at first. After a while my throat felt funny and it was hard to swallow, the doctor then handed me a curved kidney-shaped stainless steel dish and told me to hold it. Next he proceeded to get some instruments out. One look like a table for work only with shorter times on and with the times bent and resembled a small claw. I don't remember much more except I could feel the tearing as he removed the tonsil which he placed in that stainless steel dish that I was still holding.

On a Brisk October day nearly 100 years ago, a country boy, doubled over and unable to walk, was admitted to a new hospital that opened on a ward within the city and county hospital in St Paul. Royal J. Gray was only 10 years old when his parents sent him by train from Pine City, Minn. to the city and county hospital, where Dr. Arthur Gillette was waiting his arrival. The date was October 27, 1897, and Royal was the first child admitted to the hospital ward that would later develop into Gillette Children's. Dr. Gillette described Royal in his report to the University of Minnesota Board of Regents the following year. Our first patient was a little boy from a country District. His parents had spent what little money they could get together from time to time for treatment and apparatus, but the treatment was so interrupted owing to the lack of funds that the few dollars they spent in this direction were wasted and he came to us unable to walk, almost bent double by the deformity of the back and contraction of the muscles. He had seven dischargeable sinuses. Today, without causing him one bit of pain or suffering, all of these sinuses are healed, he is almost perfectly straight and running about the campus with bat and ball, a pleasure he has never before known. Royal had Pott's disease, a frequent occurrence among children who drank milk from tuberculosis infected cows. After nearly one-and-ahalf years of treatment at the hospital, he was pronounced cured and discharged.

Flag etiquette: Why are flags raised from 2:30 at the end of a Memorial Day service yet, in other cases, the flags are raised full staff at noon? Answer. What are you going to do if, at noon, Taps is being played or a speaker is talking? The prevention of such conflicts is the first reason. Secondly, having the flag-raising as part of the program gives much more prominence to our U.S. POW/MIA and Minnesota Flags.

Memory Lane: Bob Foster was thinking about Memorial Day observances of the past when he remembered the horse-drawn water tank that was used to sprinkle the dirt streets of Pine City in the 1930’s. The streets were watered down before the parade to keep the dust down, but the practice was common during dry periods of the year. Bob remembers a big cylindrical wooden tank with a wooden undercarriage mounted on wheels. A horizontal sprinkler was on the back at the bottom of the tank. They started from the old Armory, Bob said, and would sprinkle a lane of traffic at a time, from the fairgrounds, where the parade started, South to Robinson Park. The units would stop on the bridge over the river, and the firing squad would fire a salute to those who died at Sea during World War II. The parade eventually ended up at the cemetery, as it does today.

Salute to Dairy Days: Fun facts for Dairy Month. For nearly 60 years, June has been designated as the time to celebrate America's great bounty of dairy products and to pay tribute to America's Dairy Farmers. Officially christened June Dairy Month in 1939, the annual tribute has blossomed into a national affair. Just take a look at some interesting and somewhat historic dairy trivia. Milk … America's got it: In 1884, the milk bottle was invented. 48 years later, in 1932, plastic coated paper milk cartons begin appearing in the dairy case. Today, consumers can choose from a wide variety of milk containers. Think that milk and cookies before bedtime is just for kids? Not true! Milk is a natural sleeping aid for all ages because it contains an amino acid protein that sends a signal to the brain to relax. Ice cream, the latest scoop: Who done it? Controversy surrounds the discovery of the ice cream cone. Some believe the first ice cream cone was produced in New York in 1896 by an Italian immigrant. Others give credit to a waffle vendor at the 1904 St Louis Fair. Ice cream a presidential favorite? Of course! In fact, George Washington ran up a $200 bill eating ice cream in a New York City ice cream store. And, Dolly Madison, wife of U.S. President James Madison, served ice cream at her husband's inaugural ball in 1813. Ronald Reagan declared July National Ice Cream month, and the second Sunday in July National Ice Cream Day. More ice cream is produced and eaten in the U.S. than any other country. Ice cream consumption is still highest in June and July. Vanilla is America's favorite flavor.

A young man comes rushing into the clerk office the other day and wants me to print an ad right quick, saying he won’t be responsible for his wife’s debts from now on, as he’s leaving her for good immediately. I allowed it as how the forms were all closed up, and it was too late to take his ad. He says all right, Monday then and we agreed on Monday. Of course the forms weren’t closed, but I had an inkling what might happen. Then Sunday he phones me and says kind of sheepishly, you can forget that ad. Me and the misses have everything all patched up. And we’re having a friendly glass of beer right now. From where I sit, if you give time enough to think things over, those nasty quarrels that come so often from misunderstanding, will give way to tolerance and common sense.”

Veterans Day: remembering Pine City's Navy. Pine City is not the first place many people would associate with having a Navy. But just before World War I there was a naval presence in the city, the Naval Militia.
The vestiges of this organization are preserved on a stone marker in front of the new library. As people wander in and out of the library some may stop for a moment to read the inscription and think it odd to have a Navy Monument in a landlocked city. People may shake their heads and wonder, where did these men train? Pokegama Lake? Well, the truth is, yes.
Duluth became the first city in Minnesota to have a naval militia in 1903. By 1906, Captain Guy A. Eaton, who is considered, according to the Minnesota National Guard web page, "the father of the Minnesota Naval militia" was permitted to bring a ship, the USS Gopher to train the militias. Eaton became the leader of all the naval militias in Minnesota, which grew to include, not only Duluth and Pine City, but also Bemidji and Crosby.
While Duluth had the first two divisions of the naval militia, Pine City was the third, thus the designation the third division. January 17, 1913 marked the beginning of the Pine City Naval Militia.

County Rural School news: In regard to teachers marks on pupil report cards, there still seems to be much misunderstanding. According to standard tests and measurements used, most teachers mark too high and very few estimate too low. Parents should not estimate the ability of a teacher by the marks she puts on the report cards. Many teachers aim to please the fond parents by giving pupils an A or a B when the mark should be only C or D, if correct standards of measure are observed. When in doubt, use standardized tests.

Two young men, whose names we did not learn, came into town this week to cut wood. If we are to judge from appearance, we might say that they must have had a queer idea of this country, or else they came from the Wild and Woolly West. Each stalked forth with a pair of revolvers and a bowie knife swinging in his cartridge belt. How is that for civilization?

Composting municipal solid waste breaks down the organic components of garbage. It reduces the load on landfills, and the compost can presently be used as soil amendments on fields, gardens, laws, nurseries and golf courses. A new University of Minnesota research project shows that compost also can be used for bedding in cattle feedlots. Cattle in the study remained healthy and clean on compost. For some feedlot operators, the compost could be a good bedding alternative to newsprint or corn stalks.

One day last week, as Andrew Feury was on the Pokegama Road, less than half a mile above the lake, being on his way back from Brook Park, where he had been after a wagon load of mixed personal property, animate and otherwise, consisting of three calves, some feed, ect. for a newcomer from Dakota, Mr. Feury stopped at Thomas Hady's and left his team in the road untied while he called at the house. His team soon discovered they had the lines and the open road before them. They started on one of their habitual spurts, appearing then on beating all their past dashing records of speed. As a result, the calves were thrown out, but fortunately they were not hurt. One of the single trees broke, wagon box splintered, reach broken and in passing over a large oak stump, the end of the hind wheels was socked into the stump so deep and solid that the combined efforts of three men, pulling and wiggling, failed to extract the reach, and they had to use other appliances. The horses cleared themselves, and were caught at the head of the lake, not very seriously hurt.

Co-op's decision to close station worries patrons: They already knew the bad news. They came looking for reasons why. But many farmer patrons of Pine City Central Rivers cooperative left Rock Creek City Center on Monday, April 13 dissatisfied with what they heard. The cooperative recently closed its service station on 6th Street in Pine City and held the Rock Creek meeting to explain the decision. Manager Tim Kavanaugh from Central River's Princeton office led the meeting. He told the crowd that Central Rivers must reduce operating expenses to stem future losses. In Pine City, the bulk petroleum operation will remain open, as will the one in Cambridge. The Pine City Lumber Yard will be expanded by demolishing the service station building and erecting a 7,000 to 8,000 foot lumber and building center on that site.

Brush fires rage across Pine City area: Pine City firefighters battle a raging brush fire east of Beroun on the afternoon of May 7. The DNR bucket helicopter was called in to help fight the blaze, which grew out of control after the resident lit a fire to clear a small patch of land. Fortunately the home, and propane tank, were upwind of the fire. Firefighters were able to keep the fire from jumping the road north of the property, and the fire was contained and then extinguished, though not without serious damage to property. This was only one of many grass and brush fires this past week in the Pine City area. A burning ban is in effect for Pine County, and remain until green up.

Following is the account of a disastrous fire which hit Pine City May 9, 1898.
"In Ashes." Again Pine City has suffered from a disastrous conflagration, and all the business section of the city that was spared from the big fire of April 28, 1897 is in ruins, as well as a number of fine residences, the loss of property being far greater than that of last year.
Some time between half past 10 and 11: o'clock on Monday night, the foreman of the Pioneer office, just as he was retiring for the night, observed faint glimmers of light shining through the glass front of Louis Petricka's Hardware store. The light grew steadily brighter and by the time he had reached the street and sounded an alarm, the entire rear portion of the hardware store, as well as Jos. Franta's harness shop adjoining on the south, was a mass of flames. Almost the entire population was quickly gathered and many went to work in an endeavor to check the flames, while others lent their aid in removing goods from the adjacent buildings. Within half an hour after the first alarm, the flames had gained such headway that it became evident to all that the strenuous but unorganized efforts of the fire fighters were all in vain and that the destruction of the entire Village was imminent and president Breckenridge telegraphed for Aid to the Hinckley fire Department.
In the meantime, despite the efforts of the fire brigade, the flames rapidly spread in three directions from the point of origin. To the east, directly across the street, stood the K. of P. Building, the lower portion of which was occupied by Jos. Veverka's Bakery and Restaurant. These were soon laid low and the large Burger building followed next. This was occupied on the ground floor by H.N. Welch, hardware and furniture, Abe Swanson, jewelry store, and the Pine Poker print shop and editorial rooms. On the Upper Floor were located the Pine County Pioneer and John Stochl's cigar factory, while the rooms in the Rybak's General Store and residence immediately adjoining Petricka's on the north, was soon in ruins, and the flames, leaping the intervening space, soon had the large General Store of A. Pennington in their fatal embrace.

The story continues to tell that the new Lake View Hotel and Riverside cottage were destroyed, as were J.D. Vaughn”s residence and barns. Otto Kowalke”s buildings and W.F. Glasow’s two new store rooms were scorched but saved, and the large brick Hurley building, the Agnes Hotel, withstood the flames.

Roots run deep for orphan train descendants: Susie Lehner and Lyn Johnson our history buffs and are especially interested in the history of the 250,000 orphans that came to the midwest, particularly Minnesota from the Children's Aid Society and the Sisters of Charity Fondling Home in New York City. The orphan trains ran between 1854 and 1929. It is particularly difficult to trace one's history if an ancestor arrived in Minnesota on an orphan train because their birth name was often unknown. They arrived with a tag pinned to their coats listing their first name. They took the name of the foster parents that took them in. Many children as young as two years old arrived in Minnesota on those trains.

Councilmen spent some time discussing the remodeling of the village bar. Leaking doors have necessitated the replacement of the back bar, and the village accepted a $2,080 bid for the job while turning down the $3,600 bid. Mayor elect Ken Clementson speculated that a horseshoe bar would serve twice as many people as the present straight bar, and Mayor William Challeen said that the establishment should be carpeted.
St Croix Valley: If you think someone has been busy, you should see the beautiful afghans that Mrs. Shuey has crocheted. She has made one for each one of their children, and that takes quite a few. The two shades of green and white afghan is the one she likes the best, but they were all beautiful. Good going, Louise.
A Brook Park resident remembers a Time when a large lighted Christmas tree used to be put in the street by the post office in the middle of the square. Villagers gathered around the tree, sang carols and visited. Afterwards, groups went to homes and had cocoa and sandwiches. That was a fun time for all.

The fire department was called to the Pine City Hardware Company Store, which was burning in the basement of the building. The fire was preceded by a muffled explosion, followed immediately by dense smoke coming from the furnace. It is thought the explosion was caused by coal in the furnace forming a gas, which blue open the furnace door and started the fire. It was extremely fortunate the fire occurred during the day and was discovered before gaining any headway as an hours start would probably have caused the destruction of all the buildings in the block.

Concert shares spirit of christmas and community: Christmas music is steeped in tradition, and in Pine City; those timeless familiar songs that spark memories of Christmas through the years have inspired a new tradition.
That’s what happened eight years ago when Pine City citizens Jane and Gerry Robbins, with the help of Reverend Glen Kleppe and Jennifer Krinke, planned a musical event of Christmas music and invited the community. And it was just too much fun to be only a one-time event.
Zion Lutheran Church is the scene of this new tradition. Their pipe organ adds immeasurably to the grandeur of Christmas music and is the primary reason for this location of the concert.

Co-op sees lumber as its future in Pine City. A $350,000 expansion of the Central Rivers Cooporative Lumber and Building Center has made an unmistakable change in the look of Pine City’s main thoroughfare.
Once dominated by the co-op’s gas station and service center, with a small lumber yard hidden behind, the block now holds a big, contemporary, easy access lumber operation.
Included in the Central Rivers Lumber yard expansion is the re-roofing and reciting of the building which has served the lumber operation for years. Customers will be able to find their building supplies on the cantilevered covered racks which have been erected where the service station building used to be.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Carlson of Fish Lake Township, residing seven and one half miles north of North Branch, are the brand new happy “adopted” parents of a brand new baby. He just “planted” himself in the Carlson Family. Early December 17, Mr. Carlson went to the barn to do his chores, when he heard a peculiar sound that was different from the usual morning bellowing of his cows. He looked around, and right in front of a manger, discovered a gurgling 6 lb. baby boy. How he came to be placed there is still a puzzle, along with who his parents really are, but the Carlsons are so pleased with him and have decided to keep him. Ed Larson had a thrilling experience while crossing the Saint Croix River in his automobile last Tuesday when his car suddenly dropped through the ice, going down about 3 ft. Sheriff John Kozisek may be nearing the end of a puzzle. The important pieces are the fire which destroyed the sales barn, Friday night, the burglary of George W. Johnson’s jewelry store, which happened around the same time, and a car which raced out of the town soon after the fire was reported. If the cause of the fire was arson, as fire chief John Skluzacek believes, and if the burglar was the arsonist, as Kozisek suspects, the scheme may have backfired. The car, which was noticed by fireman on the way to the fire, had been seen in Grantsburg last week when there was another instance of arson and jewelry store robbery.

Ben Boo is some marathon runner. The fire department was called to the Ben Boo residence, but fortunately they were not needed. Mr. Boo is having some repainting done and Gregory Kunz, who is doing the work, placed a quart glass jar containing varnish on the oil stove to heat. The varnish began to boil, the jar broke, the varnish ran over the stove and then Ben got awfully busy. He made a trip to the Power company office, where he borrowed a Pyreen fire extinguisher from Cliff Perkins and started back for the house. Somewhere between the Power office and the house, he passed Mr. Jorgensen and hollered at him to get the fire department. Ben was closely followed by Cliff Perkins who also carried a fire extinguisher. Ben arrived at the house before much damage had been done and extinguished the blaze.

Being well aware of the fact that Pine County has not had a fair that has met with the approval of many people the past few years, every effort is being made this year to give this county one of the finest fairs in the state. Hans Grandt, fair board president, announced this week that at a recent board meeting, the stockholders agreed to reshuffle and reorganize the entire set up so as to give Pine County the type of fair it can be proud of. One of the largest carnivals in the State of Minnesota, Rocco Shows, has been contracted. This show consists of nine different rides, as compared to last year's three and also four sideshows and 25 concessions. To further push their program for a new and bigger fair, the board is rapidly completing plans for a new grandstand.

Water tower springs leak as temps take toll on Pine City: With two dozen homes and businesses dealing with frozen pipes, with iced up sewers and cracked water mains, one might of thought winter had done everything it could to Pine City.
Then the water tower sprung a leak.
Standing outside the Pine City Fire Hall on Sunday morning, the sound of falling water was unmistakable. Looking up, a tear several inches long was visible above the "C" in "Pine City."
Until the tank is repaired, the water level in the tower is being kept lower than the hole that formed two-thirds of the way up the reservoir tank.
On Sunday, public works crews were also kept busy working to repair a broken water main on 2nd Street and 1st Avenue. On Monday afternoon, they were dealing with a frozen sewer on 6th Avenue.
Repairs, improvements vie for limited school dollars: A new running track; high school roof replacement; expanded paved parking at the high school with improved traffic flow; snow removal equipment; New World languages and art textbooks; and technology.
Now that construction of the new auditorium and district office is winding down, Pine City School officials are considering these and other capital improvement items they believe need to be addressed soon. Unfortunately, the wish list contains several big- ticket items that exceed existing funding sources. Topping the list of projects for consideration are repair or replacement of the high school running track and expanded parking at Pine City High School to accommodate more Auditorium traffic.

Fire danger high in Pine County: With sunshine and warm temperatures replacing the snow and cold in the Pine City area, the threat of springtime wildfires is on the rise. Burning restrictions went into effect in Pine County on April 21, and the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources has the threat of wildfire listed as “high” in Pine County. What’s the real story behind Brown’s Corner? In response to information about Brown’s Corner at the intersection of county roads 11 (Henriette Road) and 13 (Brook Park Road), Barbara Christensen adds the following information. County records show that Robert Brown purchased his land in January of 1898. In 1900 the records include his wife, Caroline Francis Brown. They sold their land in September of 1929 to Clarence and Ethel Anderson. Since there were no street signs at the end of the 1880s and early 1900s and Browns were the first settlers on the corner, it became a landmark known as Brown’s Corner. That designation continues today, and hopefully in the future. Mister Pine City canceled: The Mr. Pine City High School event scheduled for April 26 has been canceled due to the number of participant drop-outs. Cold, wet spring delays field work: Late planting may mean lower yields. Area farmers are behind on their spring field work and planting due to the late spring thaw and slow warm up followed by recent rainy weather. Farmers are facing several challenges. One is to have a long enough growing season for crops to mature. Another is to be able to get into the fields without getting stuck and/or causing soil compaction.

The legend of the Lost train in Devil's Lake: Opinion piece by Ron T. Keagle.
"I suspect that most residents of the Pine City area have heard this old legend and probably do not know what to make of it. Maybe you think it sounds far fetched and dismiss it as a made-up story. After all, if it were true, wouldn't everybody in the area know about the details? How can a train get lost? Why would a railroad company leave their train in the lake? The railroad past Devil's Lake was originally built as the Lake Superior and Mississippi Railroad in 1870. An article in the Pine County Pioneer dated March 15, 1889. The article says that the trestle across the south end of Devils Lake is in very bad condition and is almost impossible to maintain because of the West Shore of the lake seems to be sliding down into the water. The article also notes that the railroad track has been known to move as much as 6 inches in a single night. They say that the railroad company should keep a Watchman there night and day for the purpose of signaling trains in case the track is disrupted by the landslide. While not actually proving the legend to be true, these peculiar geological conditions surrounding the railroad's encounter with Devil's Lake certainly set the stage for some kind of train wreck, with the probability of that happening being so obvious that the newspaper warns of it. The story has been recounted over the years from the old timers who lived here. 'They heard the Northbound coming, blowing the whistle, but it never came into Pine City. Upon investigation, they found only the land slide and the train tracks leading into Devil's Lake.'"

At about five o'clock on Wednesday afternoon the Burger Bros. Mill sounded the alarm that fire was raging in that locality and the residents and fire department at once set out for that portion of the village. They had not gone far before they saw that the entire brewing plant of Theo. Buselmeier was in flames. The citizens at once set to work to remove all that was possible before the flames drove them from the building and also to take the household goods from the house, which was done in short order. This is the third time the brewery has burned in the same site, and it was 14 years ago since the last fire. The cellar contained some 500 barrels of beer, which weren't damaged at all and will be enough to supply his customers for the next three months, and by that time Mr. Buselmeier will no doubt have a new Brewery ready to start up.

Voyageur theme, park-like "pauses" proposed for Highway 61, businesses push for assessing the costs citywide:
Using the travels of French voyageurs as a theme, Pine City's Highway 61 task force is suggesting a new look for the city's main artery.
It includes decorative street lights with banners, six small park-like oasis with benches and shrubs and a pavement design in the intersection at 3rd Avenue by First National Bank.
The Pine City Council has proposed assessing 80% of the cost of the decorative elements to those who own property along the street and 20% to properties citywide. The corridor owners who attended a task force meeting on Wednesday, June 16 made it clear they feel the whole community should bear the cost.
Pine City area lock-up to benefit MDA: The good citizens of the Pine City area will be arrested by the Northland Chapter of the MDA on Monday, June 28. The notorious citizens will be locked up at the Heron's Nest, at 205 5th Street, for having big hearts. Each jailbird will be locked up for an hour and asked to raise his or her bail through donations to benefit local residents who have neuromuscular diseases.
Don't feel sorry for the jailbirds; Cindy Olson, at the Heron's Nest, will provide them with comfortable jail cells and coffee. It sounded like a small sized Fourth of July celebration in Pine City early last Tuesday morning, when Marshall Biedermann, with the assistance of Clarence Gottry, tried to stop a car. The marshall got a phone call from Hinckley about four o'clock in the morning. The Hinckley marshall stated that he had seen a man in the act of breaking into the power office there. The fellow ran to a car and headed south. The Hinckley marshall had fired one shot and then his gun jammed. Marshall Biedermann had about 10 minutes to get to the bridge. On the way past the Gehl Oil station he hollered at Gottry, the night man there, to fire at the car in case it got past the bridge.
There was a car parked on one side of the road at the south end of the bridge. Ed Pirkle was on his way home with a horse and buggy, and when he saw them approaching, he parked on the other side of the road. The bandit car didn't even hesitate but passed between the car and the buggy with the speed of an express train.
Marshall Biedermann tried to halt them but without result, and he then emptied his revolver at the fleeing car. He feels certain that at least one of the bullets entered the rear of the automobile. Gottry also took a few shots at the machine as it speeded past the oil station. Marshall Biedermann then phoned the Rush City Marshall but he could not be located in time to stop them there. Marshall Biedermann boarded a car from Hinckley, which went as far as Rush City, but no trace of the bandits could be found. Chas. Spickler, whose house adjoins the highway, heard the first shot and got to a front window in time to see the car speed past and hear the fuselade.

Lone gunman rob's Willow River Bank: The Northview Bank in Willow River was robbed at gunpoint on the afternoon of Wednesday, June 25.
The Pine County Sheriff's Office reported that the bank, at 8132 County Road 61 in Willow River, was robbed by a lone gunman at approximately 12:06 p.m. on June 25. According to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the robber approached the teller counter, brandished a handgun, and demanded cash. After receiving an undisclosed amount of cash, the robber departed the bank in an older model, red Chevrolet Blazer bearing Wisconsin license plates.
Citizens speaking out about city water: Sediment in the city's downtown water tower is causing discolored water across town, the Pine City Public Works Department reported, and Pine City residents are speaking up about it.
The problem stems from a large amount of ice that accumulated in the bottom of both water towers which caused iron and sediment to settle out more. Residents and businesses were notified of hydrant flushing, but the process is taking a while. The city is installing mixers in the water tower tanks to stir up the sediment and hopes the situation will improve soon.

Participants are asked to meet at Norway point at 1 p.m. The boat parade will proceed south, along the west side of Cross Lake. The parade will then travel north, along the east side of the lake. There were about 35 boats in the parade last year, and the group would like to have many more this year. Even though it is not necessary, many boats were decorated, becoming part of the festive occasion.
Fireworks: Pine City will have a fireworks display to celebrate the Fourth of July.
The show will begin at dusk, around 10 p.m., on Saturday, July 3 at the fairgrounds. Americana Fireworks will present the show, which was made possible by over $9,000 in contributions from clubs, businesses and individuals in the Pine City area.
High School plan nearly finished, additions would almost double building size: Additions proposed at Pine City High School would nearly double the square footage of the building, adding about 104,000 square feet to the 120,000 that exists.
The Pine City School Board and district administrators are preparing a bond referendum to finance the proposed additions and renovations. Included in the proposed expansion are classrooms, a fine arts center and a field house style gymnasium. The estimated cost for the expansion as proposed now is $15 million, but that figure is subject to change.
Y2K concerns, stock up on 5-day supply of food and water: Because there may be disruptions in the supply of goods, shortages may occur during January 2000. Another consideration is if there are power failures, stores may not be able to open. By stocking a minimum 5-day Supply of non-perishable goods and essential items, families will not find themselves going without necessities. Sanitation items that should be stocked include toilet paper, antibacterial soap that doesn't need water, feminine supplies, baby needs and disinfectant. When determining the amount of water to store, keep in mind that a normally active person needs to drink at least two quarts of water each day, and you may need water for cooking. Also don't forget about your pets needs.

Since 1896, Father Rabsteinek has administered faithfully to St. Mary's Parish besides Hinckley, Beroun, Sandstone, Rutledge, Kerrick and Nickerson. Now, after nearly four years work under various difficulties in these newly settled missions, where churches have been built and membership of the parishes doubled and finances bettered by his energy, he leaves reluctantly, not on account of trouble, but merely on account of his own will. The public is fully acquainted with the facts and are sorry to lose him, when he could have enjoyed the fruits of his work.

Gone are the six park-like oasis, called "pauses " by the landscape architect. The new estimated total cost, with the revisions, is $3,266,600, down from $3,678,700. Also contributing to the total project cost is a signal and crosswalk at 8th avenue, where there is now a four-way stop.
Wisconsin man struck by train after fleeing State Trooper: The Pine County Sheriff's Department reported that a 19-year-old Cornocopia, Wisconsin man was killed near Sandstone just before midnight July 9, when a train struck him as he was sitting on the railroad tracks. Kevin Martens was killed by a Northbound train about a mile south of the Sandstone Airport. The incident was reported to the Pine County Sheriff's Office at 11:50 p.m. by the Burlington Northern Railroad. The report states that police had sought Martens earlier in the evening when he fled from the scene of a traffic stop that had occurred on I-35 just north of Hinckley. The traffic stop was made around 8:15 p.m. by a State Trooper because of erratic driving. The driver was arrested for DWI. After the vehicle was stopped, Martens and another passenger ran from the vehicle. The other passenger was captured but Martin's managed to evade police. It is believed that Martens was walking the tracks, became tired, and sat down to rest when struck by the train. The incident continues to be investigated by the Sheriff's Office.

The car was occupied by two young couples, all of whom jumped out when their car was hit. Fortunately, no one was hurt.
Clarence Hagen, had perhaps as close a call to death or permanent serious injury Monday morning of this week as he will have until his time comes. Mr. Hagan was turning his cattle out to pasture, and among them was a Guernsey bull, which had always been gentle. This morning his Bullship was peeved about something, however, and deciding that Hagen was the cause of all his troubles, started to settle matters right there. Mr. Hagan had nothing to defend himself with and was knocked down and pretty badly used up. Finally, Hagen rolled and scrambled and was pushed by the bull to a log in the lot. The bull became confused upon seeing the log and begin butting it, giving Mr. Hagan a chance to get away. He was rushed to the hospital at Princeton and given surgical attention, and it was found he was not as seriously injured as it was first thought, but it was a remarkable escape.

Many automobile accidents occurred near Pine City last Saturday afternoon, and it was a hectic day for The Wrecking Crew at the Petschel garage.
A Willy Knight and a Ford locked horns near the Haynes Farm, south of town, and both went into the ditch, although they didn't upset. The cars were damaged considerably but no one was hurt.
Jos. Petschel and George Fyten were there to tow in the cars when a man and a woman came along in a Ford. The driver was watching the wrecked cars and in some mysterious manner his car upset right in the middle of the road, rolling over and missed Fyten by a few feet. The woman was pinned under the car, and she was released and rushed to Dr. Wiseman.
Then while Mr. Petschel and Mr. Fyten were getting the last car that upset, a man came along in a Buick and became so interested in watching the proceedings that he ran into the ditch. He kept right on going, however, and was able to get back on the road without doing any damage.

Human remains found buried beside house: Workers replacing the foundation of a house on the shore of Pokegama Lake made a gruesome discovery on October 13 according to the Pine County Sheriff's Office. Possible human remains had been unearthed during the construction project on the 15000 block of Sunset Trail, on the eastern shore of Pokegama Lake. According to county reports, the house was built in 1951, and the current couple has owned the building since 1999.
A Pine County deputy described the remains as "skeletal" and it appeared that the deceased individual had been buried at that location for at least several decades.
At this time, it is unknown whether this is a previously undisturbed historic burial site or something else. A historic burial site is a possibility and that is why there is an anthropologist and a archaeologist looking at the remains.
Needless to say the owners were taken aback by the dramatic discovery on their property.

Human remains 'historic,' to be re-buried elsewhere. A team of law enforcement and archaeological experts have determined that skeletal human remains discovered in Pokegama Township on October 13 were buried long before a house was erected on that site in 1951. The Pine County Sheriff's Office reported that the Minnesota Bureau of Criminal Apprehension, the Anoka County Medical Examiner and Hamline University anthropologists had determined that the human remains were "most likely connected to a historic burial site."
The sheriff's office reported that it was not known as to where the skeletal remains will be relocated, "but all parties agreed that re-internment will follow cultural guidelines."
The whole experience was unusual for Pine County officers working the case, who had to stand guard over the site and treat it like a potential crime scene until the exact nature of the remains were determined.

Young man, don’t swear: There is no occasion for it outside the printing office, where it is useful when the paper is behind time. It also comes in handy in proof reading and is indispensable when the ink works bad and the press begins to buck. It is sometimes brought into use when the foreman’s mad and it has been known to entirely remove that tired feeling of the editor when he looks over the paper after it is printed. Outside of the printing office, it’s a foolish habit.

Thursday evening, March 5, is the night of the Big Fat Men's Basketball Game at the Armory. Phil Silesky has accepted the challenge of Judge Wilcox and has gotten together a gang of would-be players who think they can handle the judge's team. J.P. Peterson is considered the star of the Silesky team and has taken the game very much to heart. He and his teammates were together last Monday evening, on their way to the Armory through the alleys so their opponents wouldn't get wise. Peterson was overheard to say that he hadn't smoked for a week and his wind was much better. Silesky has increased his daily walk about 10 times to get in shape.

Four Pine City women decided last Sunday that they were as good hikers as Phil Silesky and other local long-distance walkers and started out to walk to Rock Creek and return. The first mile or two rolled by very nicely. The air was warm and balmy and the ladies were enjoying the scenery and were of the opinion that there is certainly nothing about walking to make such a fuss over. The third mile was a little longer. The fourth mile seemed endless and the road got very hard and the feet got soft and began to swell. Still they figured that there wasn't much to this hiking business, but about a mile and a half this side of Rock Creek, they came to the sudden conclusion that folks were very foolish to walk when they could ride just as well so they put in an S.O.S. call for Henry Buirge. Hank Mom, baby doing well after roadside birth: A firefighter helped deliver his own child on a roadside in Carlton County. The Carlton County Sheriff's Office reports that at 5:57 a.m. on Friday, March 27, Carlton County Dispatch received a call from Justin Jahr of Carlton. Jahr, who is a firefighter with the Cloquet Area Fire District, told the dispatcher that his wife was in labor and he was bringing her to the hospital. He asked the dispatcher to have Carlton Ambulance meet him at their station. However, labor was progressing rapidly and they had to stop their vehicle outside of Wrenshall at the intersection of Webbking Drive and County Road 101. Carlton County deputies arrived on scene and were joined within a few minutes by Carlton Ambulance. Shortly afterward, Jahr helped deliver the baby girl in the back of their vehicle. The Carlton County Sheriff's Office reports that baby, mom and dad are all doing well.

DNR suspects arson in a string of brush fires: Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Central Region Fire Manager Mark Wurdeman said they currently haven't done any damage – but they could. Fortunately they haven't burned anybody's house down, but ... the conditions are still really, really dry out there, and the fuels out there are still really ripe for a fast - spreading fire if we get wind. What we're asking the public to do is to keep an eye out for unusual vehicles in the area and unusual activity. If a vehicle stops along the road and somebody is out in the road ditch, get the license number of the vehicle. Don't stop – don't interfere with what they're doing. But just report the suspicious activity. Wurdeman noted that there is a potential $5,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the arsonist or arsonists.

Ed McGrath, a documentary filmmaker from Los Angeles who was in the process of writing a book and shooting a movie about Lauren Bruner, one in a group of sailors who were the last to leave the U.S.S. Arizona following the Pearl Harbor attack on December 7, 1941. The filmmaker was interested in finding information about another man in the group, Pine County's Alvin Dvorak, who grew up on a farm near Bruno before moving to Stillwater and enlisting in the Navy.
When the U.S.S. Arizona was bombed, Bruner, Dvorak and three others escaped using a rope strung 60 feet above the broiling, fiery water between their ship and the USS Vestal. Dvorak, who had tied the knot for the rope and insisted on seeing that it held, was the last person to leave the Arizona, preceded by Bruner. Dvorak had burns over 83 percent of his body, and, sadly died on the hospital ship 17 days later. Bruner, who was burned nearly as severely, not only survived but lived a full and interesting life with a strong focus on his friends and fellow soldiers who were lost on that fateful day in December.

On Monday afternoon, Hugh Alguire was stacking hay and was just about finishing an eight ton stack when he was called to supper, as he drove up with the last load. He left the horses hitched to the wagon. Hugh and his men had been gone barely 15 minutes when they noticed smoke coming from the direction of the stack, and when they arrived at the scene, the stack was in flames and so was the load. The horses started to run and were severely scorched before they were released from the wagon.

All the hay, wagon and rack were totally consumed by the flames. It is presumed the fire started by somebody smoking too near the hay.

Rousing voyageur dance highlights fall gathering at North West Post: Step into the life of early 19th century fur traders and voyageurs when re-enactors from around the region converge on the North West Company Fur Post for a fall gathering on Saturday and Sunday. Visitors can watch as British traders, voyageurs and Indians join in competition, games, music, and a rollicking festive candlelight dance to mark the start of the winter fur harvest. During the fur trade era, which stretched from the early 1500s to the 1840s, a stream of hardy adventurers found their way into the vast wilderness of the American continent. There they met, worked with and learned from the American Indians and traded blankets, kettles and other European-made goods for furs. Before the huge influx of settlers arrived after the treaties of the mid19th century, a feeling of mutual work and cooperation prevailed between the two cultures.
